

DESIGN IN COLOUR

A serene palette of materials creates a private retreat in a Raglan subdivision.

This might be Georgia Peacocke's first house design, but the colour palette is assured and elegant.

Inside and out, Resene Half Rice Cake and Resene Half Titania provide a neutral, warm background for the bush and the views. Timber takes a leading role: inside, the cedar ceiling is oiled with Wood-x Glacier Peak and outside, cedar battens are protected with Wood-x Flint. Elsewhere, functional elements are painted with Resene Ironsand. It's a tonal, yet thoroughly contemporary, approach.
