

DESIGN IN COLOUR

A warm palette for a new house in a very public heritage zone.

Bohemian Aro Valley might lack a bit of sun, and it might be known for old villas and cottages – but this house by Spacecraft Architects brings in light and warmth – in large part thanks to its paint scheme.

Internally, walls are painted with Resene Quarter Rice Cake, a warm white that helps bring the sun through the middle of the house, while feature walls in the kitchen and bedrooms are in Resene Norway. Outside, a simple combination of Resene Ranger on the front door and aprons contrasts with cladding in Resene Element.
