

Colour is obviously a huge part of fashion. Along with concept, silhouette, cut and texture, colour is one of the key issues I'm looking at every day. It's always a big part of the handwriting for any collection; it helps to communicate the thought, mood, emotion.

And for me colour should never be allowed to become overpowering. Colour is not in charge, it's just one aspect. Likewise the garment is never allowed to be in charge. There always needs to be room for the individual. It should always be about the person wearing the clothes not the clothes themselves.

It's the same with interiors. An interior should never be overwhelming, the room should never take control so the colour needs to retain a certain subtlety.

As a fashion designer my role is to communicate ideas and to allow my customer to express themselves, through my product. With this range of colours I want to share some of my vision of what one element of an interior or a building can be and I want to allow you the opportunity to use colour as part of expressing who you are.

Note 1: The reflectance value of a colour indicates the amount of light and heat that a colour will reflect. Black has a reflectance value of 0% and absorbs all light and heat. The surfaces are consequently very dark and can get very hot. In contrast, white has a reflectance value of 100% and keeps a building light and cool. All colours fit within these two extremes.

Note 2: Tones listed above are subject to change if colours are reformulated.
